

IMPROVING GOVERNMENT PERFORMANCE

Implementing our party's agenda will require effective management of federal agencies and the people who serve in them. Operational breakdowns prevent our government from providing the level of service that the times demand and the American people deserve. Effective management is not just about making sure bad things don't happen; it's about making sure great things do. As a party, our goal is an efficient and highly performing federal government, and good government starts with good people. To that end, we will develop a comprehensive management agenda for the next administration that will promote strong leadership, improve efforts to recruit and retain the right talent, and foster an engaged federal workforce.
