

EMERGING HR LEADERS FORUM

DEVELOP TOP HR TALENT IN YOUR AGENCY

The Emerging HR Leaders Forum is a professional development program that offers employees a unique training opportunity early in their federal careers. Participants rapidly advance their HR knowledge through educational sessions featuring group discussions on timely topics, real-life work experiences and HR best practices. Increasing your employees' HR expertise in the field will enhance your agency's overall HR capabilities.

Enroll your rising stars to join a select group from across government they will learn best practices, gain valuable skills and understand HR issues while interacting with other high-performing federal HR professionals and subject-matter experts. Several federal agencies keep waiting lists of staff for upcoming forums, knowing that the program provides top performers with the tools and connections to help them move into leadership positions.

YOUR TOP PERFORMERS WILL:

- Engage with subject-matter experts from the public, private and nonprofit sectors
- Build a network of 45 to 50 high-performing professionals participating in the program
- Become a member of a growing alumni network
- Develop the management, leadership and communication skills needed to excel in the HR profession
- Gain access to resources, information and best practices from agencies across government
- Participate in capstone projects to reinforce lessons learned in the program

“This was a fantastic program. I’ve only been in the federal government for a little over three years and I must say that being in this program is the best thing that has happened to me. A must have for any HR professional that wishes to advance to the next level. My knowledge toolbox is overflowing.”

“As a new employee in the federal sector, the Emerging HR Leaders Forum is an invaluable resource that will accelerate my growth and development in my federal career.”

“This was an invaluable program. The Partnership for Public Service has the vision to encourage transformational change in the federal government. This program was insightful and inspiring and I would recommend it to any of my colleagues. Well done.”

“The Emerging HR Leaders Forum was a great opportunity to gain exposure to various aspects of the federal HR arena. I have a better understanding of how other agencies do things and I’m able to see how my agency can improve upon processes and procedures.”

“I love the interactions and discussions that we have within our groups and as a collective. They help me to connect with other HR specialists with innovative ideas and who are experiencing (and overcoming) similar challenges. A win-win.”
