

Public Service Recognition Week

Below are sample social posts to share ahead of and during Public Service Recognition Week on Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and other social platforms.

HASHTAGS

Use #PublicServiceRecognitionWeek and #PSRW to engage during the week, and also consider including supporting hashtags such as #GovPossible and #IServeBecause in your posts.

Public Service Recognition Week has been celebrated the first week of May since 1985 to honor the those who serve our nation as federal, state, county, local and tribal government employees. It is also a chance for public servants to share what they do and why they answered the call to serve. Be sure to follow along on the Partnership for Public Service's social media platforms, and tag @publicservice on Twitter or use the hashtags mentioned above so that we can help amplify your messages of support! Help us show our public servants that their work is appreciated this year!
