Emerging Human Resources Leaders Program

The government HR workforce plays a critical role in bringing the most talented people into public service and ensuring they have what they need to succeed.

The Emerging HR Leaders program enables HR employees early in their government careers to develop the foundational knowledge and the professional network necessary to navigate their HR careers and maximize their impact in government.

Throughout this six-month program, participants engage in professional development activities and learn from subject matter experts. The sessions emphasize conversation and application to ensure participants understand concepts fully and can use the skills and knowledge they acquire.

After graduation, emerging HR leaders build on the connections they developed by joining the Partnership's Leadership Alumni Network. Multiple cohorts graduate each year, providing them with an ever-growing network of government HR professionals to engage with and learn from.
